Invitation to Submit

This new online Journal is to publish its first issue in July 2011. The Editorial Board is hoping to make the Journal one which encourages professional doctorate and PhD candidates (or those who have recently completed their doctorates/PhDs), to submit a paper on the use of mixed methods in their research. The papers could focus on the methodological choices made, an overview of the research in general, issues encountered when utilising mixed methods, data integration or any aspect relevant to the use of mixed methods in their respective research.

Papers from supervisors and mixed methods researchers are also welcome and may cover aspects of the teaching and supervision of those utilising mixed methods.

Papers utilising mixed methods from business, management and commerce disciplines are welcome, as are papers from across ALL disciplines, if there are implications towards aspects of policy in the research.
